

Sexual Health Education Assistant Spring 2023

Sexual Health Education Assistant

By working with the Sexual Health Education Coordinator and fellow student leaders, you will develop and provide sexual health education, programming, and outreach to help foster and maintain a sex positive culture at San Francisco State University, and provide students with knowledge about and access to sexual health information and resources, both on and off campus.

What you will do:

Assist in developing and facilitating sexual health workshops

Develop inclusive sexual health education materials, including social media messaging, videos, and handouts

Assist in ongoing assessment and evaluation to measure impact of sexual health programming and gauge campus interest and feedback for future programming

Assist in distributing sexual health supplies to the campus, such as fulfilling requests for safer sex supplies, running and maintain the condom caboose, refilling campus condom dispensers, and assembling menstrual health and condoms kits

Collaborate with others within Health Promotion & Wellness, as well as other campus partners and student organizations, on workshops, events, and other outreach opportunities

What it takes to be successful in this role:

You are passionate or have an interest in inclusive sexual health education and reproductive justice

You are prepared to work both independently and as part of a team on short-term and long-term projects

You are comfortable talking about or discussing topics related to sexual health, sexuality, and sex

You are open to and embrace diversity and inclusivity

You are interested in developing your communication skills, both written and spoken, and practicing facilitating presentations and workshops
